of applied microbiology

MEMBERSHIP

Introduction

If you're looking to advance your studies, grow your career, shape the future of applied microbiology or contribute to solving some of our world's greatest challenges, then we invite you to join Applied Microbiology International. We foster an inspiring, global community that collectively enriches our members' work, provides opportunity to grow and contributes to a better world for all.

As a member you'll gain access to a broad network that will help advance your professional ambitions, whatever stage you are at. You'll be in great company, with an international community of microbiologists focused on a common purpose, solving global challenges, and using their knowledge for good. We offer fellowships and grants to support research, exclusive member discounts for conferences and events and provide access to member-only reports as well as our internationally acclaimed scientific journals, which offer publishing opportunities.

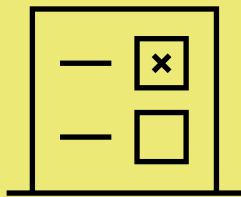

For those interested in policy, we want your voice heard and membership provides an opportunity for you to advocate for evidence-based policies both nationally and globally. We provide outreach opportunities to mentor and inspire, and a truly global network to collaborate with others who share your passion and ambition to push forward and achieve scientific breakthrough in applied microbiology.

We help our members advance their studies and their careers, providing professional development, grants and funding, conferences, networking and opportunities to collaborate, across disciplines and around the world.
